

WILL CELEBRATE LONG PASTORATE

Father O'Farrell Completes
Twenty-five Years of Service.

ROBBERY IN PRINCE GEORGE

Elks Appoint Delegates to State
Meeting in Charlottesville.

Times-Dispatch Bureau,
169 North Sycamore Street,
Petersburg, Va., September 5.

On the 21st of this month the congregation of St. Joseph's Catholic Church in this city will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Rev. Father T. O'Farrell's pastorate of that church, and a reception in honor of the interesting occasion will be given by the women members to all friends of the beloved pastor, Catholic and non-Catholic.

On the Sunday following, September 25, special services commemorative of the pastor's anniversary will be held in St. Joseph's Church, at which the Rev. Father Coleman, a Petersburg boy, will be the celebrant.

It is understood that the congregation of St. Joseph's will soon install a handsome painting in the church to commemorate Father O'Farrell's long and successful pastorate, and to serve as a memorial of him after his life and work on earth are ended. The subject of the painting has not yet been decided on.

St. Joseph's Church, erected during Father O'Farrell's ministry, is one of the handsomest church edifices in the State. The pastor is not only warmly beloved by his large congregation, but by the people of all creeds and classes in the community, in which he has served so long and so faithfully.

One Pulpit to Supply.

The Virginia Annual Conference, which is to meet in Richmond in November, will have at least one important appointment to make in Petersburg. The Rev. Thomas R. Reeves, who was appointed to Washington Street Church last fall, resigned that charge some months ago to become assistant principal of the Blackstone Female Institute, and the Rev. Fred R. Chennault has since been supplying the pulpit. Washington Street Church is one of the largest and most important churches in the State. It is not known that changes will be made in the pastorate of any of the Methodist churches in this city, as the present pastors have not served their full terms, but there may be some changes, nevertheless.

Robbery in Prince George.

Walter Zajic, a Bohemian farmer of Prince George county, drove into town Saturday with his wife. On returning home they discovered that their dwelling had been broken into and robbed of a shotgun, an accordion, a razor and sundry other articles. Zajic telegraphed to Suffolk for a bloodhound to trace the thief. The hound took the trail and followed it to the house of two negroes, whom Mr. Zajic had noticed on the roadside eating watermelon, as he was coming to town. The negroes satisfactorily accounted for themselves, however, and no arrests were made.

Delegates to Elks' Convention.
Petersburg Lodge of Elks has appointed the following delegates to the fourth annual State convention of the order, which meets in Charlottesville tomorrow: C. E. Bowie, H. V. Parham, George Watson, Myer Saal, W. W. Presson, J. B. Harrison and Owen Gilmore. W. T. Baugh, of this city, is sergeant-at-arms of the body, and W. Clifford is the secretary.

First Meeting of New Council.
The first business meeting of the lower branch of the new City Council will be held tomorrow afternoon, and the Board of Aldermen will follow with its first meeting next Monday.

As both houses have fully organized and appointed their committees, there is nothing to prevent prompt and plain sailing in the regular business on the docket.

Labor Day Observance.

There was no formal observance of Labor Day in Petersburg beyond that of a holiday. The banks, Federal building and the industrial establishments were closed. Many people went away on pleasure trips, and many went to Richmond to witness the day's celebration there.

Personal and Otherwise.

Miss Evelyn Archer, of Chesterfield county, and Everett Lunsford, of this city, were quietly married at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the residence of the officiating minister, the Rev. A. R. Love, on West Washington street.

Mrs. Frank Newcomb, of Prince George county, was brought to the hospital in this city yesterday to be operated on for appendicitis.

Dr. H. G. Leigh, the City Coroner, left yesterday to join his family in the mountains, and will be absent about two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh S. Bird, of Williamsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh S. Bird, of Williamsburg, who have been visiting relatives in this city, left yesterday for Portsmouth to spend several weeks.

Allen Bailey, a colored driver, died Saturday night of tetanus at his home in Blanford.

He was fifty years old, and married. Bailey was kicked by a mule some days ago, lockjaw finally resulting from his injuries.

The usual number of negro Sunday crap shooters appeared as prisoners in the Police Court this morning. A fine of $5 was imposed on each one, about a dozen in number.

Confirmation at Dinwiddie.

Conductor Bishop Tucker, of the Diocese of Southern Virginia, preached to a large congregation at Calvary Church, Dinwiddie Courthouse, yesterday and confirmed a class of six candidates, four males and two females, presented by the rector, Rev. Reuben Meredith.

Judge Branch T. Epps, of Dinwiddie county, is suffering from the effects of a fall, which he sustained on Friday.

Prayers were offered in Tabb Street Presbyterian Church on Sunday for the recovery of the Rev. Charles E. Stribling, the new pastor of the church, who has been prevented by sickness from coming to enter on his duties.

WORKING PEOPLE HAVE GREAT DAY

to the prettiest between the ages of thirteen months and two years. There was never before such an assembly of mothers and their babies, who invented and propagated the anti-race suicide idea, which has been much in mind of late, would have hugged himself with joy and shaken hands with every mamma present. But he happened to be out West somewhere now, talking to the Indians, and could not be present at Richmond's gift to future generations. He will be notified, however, through the press committee that Richmond has its full quota of babies, and will plentifully supply the next generation.

There was to have been a prize awarded to the ugliest man present, but he escaped in the crowd, and was not seen again. Had he had the courage to come forward and bow his best head, he would have received a box of cigars. There was also to have been a prize for the heaviest man present, but Colonel John S. Harwood kept himself in the background.

The motorcycle races came in the afternoon, and it was especially to be expected that a motorcycle, but they make an awful racket, and the drivers kept them whirling all the time. They were put on in succession, and then the harness and running events were announced. All the races were of a high order, and it was especially to be mentioned that there was no purse, that the owners entered them simply to "help out," to do their part in the entertainment of the toilers.

Then came the sound of martial tread, and the crowd looked up to see again, as it were, the colors of Lee and Grant, going to death and victory or to death and defeat on the slaughter fields of Gettysburg. The sham battle was between the Blues, aided by the Boys' Brigade, commanded by Captain Dave Leary, and the First Virginia Regiment, commanded by Major L. T. Price. The Blues defended the eastern end of the oval between the tracks, and the First Regiment moved on the attack from the western end.

Each army had one piece of artillery, loaned for the occasion by the Howitzers, and the first intimation of bloody conflict came with the blinding flash, a white plume of smoke, and the boom of explosion from the western end of the field. The battle had opened. Major Price was urging his men to victory, and the boys were shouting and whispering words of cheer to the dying. Then, from the eastern end of the field, could be heard the stentorian tones of Captain Leary. "Move up the artillery on the right and fire on the enemy's flank." The smoke spoke, and flame and smoke belched forth. The cannonade was sharp and fierce, and soldiers by the dozens lay dead and dying; that is, they should have done and would have done in real battle. This battle must be described in actual style.

The result of the battle was in doubt. But the First Virginia, under Captain Leary, ordered a retreat. The first line of defense, and amid a rain of shot and shell the retreat was made in good order. But the defense held to its position for half an hour longer, despite the fearful carnage. The ranks never wavered before that awful crash. The crack of the rifles and the roar of the distant cannon continued, and the offense advanced steadily. Then down all the line ran out the single word "Charge!" But the defensive army was ready, and the advancing companies were held back under a storm of lead. Suddenly the First Virginia was ordered to "Cease firing." The night was too far advanced, and the generals believed it better to wait for the morning before continuing the fight. Both sides rested on their arms, as it were. Afterwards they refreshed themselves.

There were no actual fatalities, but Lieutenant Kinser, of the First Regiment, and another private were severely overcome by the heat, and had to be borne from the field in the ambulance.

RHEUMATISM PAINFUL & DANGEROUS

Rheumatism is due to a diseased condition of the blood cells and corpuscles, brought about by an excess of uric acid in the circulation. It is not only a very painful disease but an extremely dangerous trouble. The briny, acid state of the blood gradually forms a coating over the muscles, and by depositing a cement-like substance in the joints frequently terminates fatally, or leaves its victim a hopeless cripple. It is natural to "doctor" the spot that hurts, and it is quite right to use liniments, hot applications, etc., to get temporary relief from a painful joint or swollen tendon; but Rheumatism is not a skin disease, and such things, when depended on alone make one careless, and the disease gets a firmer hold on the blood. S. S. S. cures the disease because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. It goes into the circulation, and removes every particle of the irritating uric acid, builds up the blood, makes it rich and oily, and in this way prepares it for the proper nourishment of all joints, muscles, nerves and bones. If you have Rheumatism, get the uric acid out of the blood by taking S. S. S., a purely vegetable medicine, and enjoy freedom from its misery. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free to all who write.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

None was seriously ill, and they were soon restored by the ministering of Dr. Harshbarger.

At special request, the mounted squad of police, headed by Sergeant Smith, paraded in front of the grandstand and was vociferously cheered. The men, in their handsome trappings, made a splendid showing. They were much in evidence during the day, and were of much assistance to the county police.

The balloon ascension was reserved for the climax. It proved to be an anti-climax. Inflation of the balloon was not finished by 2 o'clock, when many of the crowd, tired of the long wait, had gone. The ascension was not spectacular. From the north side of the race track the balloon went up about 200 feet, and then H. C. Churchhill let go and dropped in his parachute. The parachute came down well enough. Parachutes after a few feet from its point of descent. The drop was made in a small clump of trees near the race track.

Then the crowd went to the circus.

Work Horse Parade Is Feature.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Roanoke, September 5.—The chief event in Roanoke's Labor Day celebration was the first annual work horse parade. Several hundred horses and vehicles were in line, and it was considered the biggest parade the town ever saw. A large empty dry goods box fell from the top of one of the wagons, and struck J. H. Linkous, an aged Roanoker, on the head, causing minor concussion of the brain. The box was worked up by John W. Sherman, a local newspaper man, and Chief of Police Hugh N. Dyer.

Business Suspended in Staunton.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Staunton, Va., September 5.—All business was practically suspended today, that everybody might join in the celebration of Labor Day. It was about the hottest day of the year, and the air was charged with humidity, making it hard on the immense crowd that filled the streets. There was a big trades parade, several visiting bands taking part and adding the music. After the parade there was a musical performance of various kinds, making the day one long to be remembered by the hosts of visitors.

KIOSK CLIMBS 100 DEGREES

Gives Us Real Hottest Day of Summer at the Beginning of Autumn.

According to the kiosk in Capitol Square, the maximum temperature of the season was registered yesterday when the little needle that tells the tale steadily climbed to 101 degrees. Not at any time during the summer, now considered past, did Richmond suffer a spell of as intensely hot weather as that of the last few days. People who passed through the torrid depths of the previous months with a smile on their faces groaned aloud in their agony yesterday.

Not in July or August did the needle in the kiosk register higher than 100 degrees, which figure represented the maximum temperature for the summer up to yesterday. On one day in July it was credited with having passed the hundred mark, but as a matter of fact it did not. Yesterday was the first and only day this summer that it went to 101.

Before people climbed out of bed yesterday they were aware that day was to be a scorcher. The night before had been too hot and close for restful sleeping. And it was a scorcher. Not once did the sun hide itself behind a cloud, the day being in marked contrast to three whole weeks of cloudy days that had gone before. The heat was more generally felt and caused more suffering than at any time this summer.

Quality as Receivers.
J. B. C. Spencer and H. N. Phillips qualified yesterday before Judge Waddill as receivers for the Williamsburg Knitting Mill Company in a bond of $15,000. It is not known what steps the receivers will take toward disposing of the plant, which originally cost $30,000. Operatives of the plant who live away from Williamsburg are leaving as fast as they can secure other positions. It is thought the receivers will try to sell the plant as a whole to some parties who will operate it.
